Mo — Corrections Sheet (Sep 17 – Oct 16 calls)

I went through your calls from the last month. A lot of it is really good: your quotes go out in minutes with everything right, your service days are almost always correct, and customers like talking to you. Your best calls (Quaschnik, Lanz, Boerner, Peters) were as good as anyone's.

These are the six fixes that matter most. Each one shows what you said on a real call and what to say instead.

1. The year-round plan goes FIRST, with your recommendation

This is the big one. On the last month of calls, the year-round plan went first only 3 times.

What happened: Souvik asked what you'd recommend, and you said "Yeah, yeah, that. That is also a good option" about the $450. Eugene said "Sign me up for a year" and ended up on the Quick Fix.

Say this instead (after the 5 beats):

> "There are two ways to do this, and I'll tell you which one I'd put you on. Most people in your situation take the year-round program: $100 a month, no deposit, unlimited visits. We catch the ones you've got now, then we keep the perimeter covered so the next one gets caught before it does damage. There's also a one-month option: $450, five weekly visits, $150 up front, and if we catch nothing, the $150 is all you pay. That clears what's there today. It doesn't stop the next one. For a yard that's had them [however long they said], I'd take the year-round one."

If they say they want the year-round plan, stop selling and book it.

2. Teach before you price

None of the 92 calls got all 5 beats in before the price.

When they ask the price first, say:

> "I'll give you both prices in about a minute. Let me get two quick things so I quote you right, and I'll tell you what you're actually dealing with."

Then ask the zip, the acreage and how long they've had them. Then give the 5 beats: the food, the net, the dinner bell, the new hills, and territorial ("not if, but when"). Then give the price.

3. "Let me talk to my spouse" means get the info first

At least 15 warm callers hung up with no name, email or address. Without those, we can't follow up, and the lead is gone.

Say this:

> "Totally makes sense. Let me get your name and email, and I'll send it over so you two can look at it together. No commitment."

Then get the name, cell, email and street address, one at a time, and read the address back.

4. Only say what's true and on the sheet

Customers trust you because you're honest. Don't trade that for a big claim.

Don't say	Say instead
"99% success ratio"	"We catch them. That's all we do, moles only."
"We're the only ones who do moles in Washington"	"We're a mole-only company. It's the only thing we do."
"Working with them for 10 years"	Say nothing about years unless it's true for that customer
"If we don't catch anything we wouldn't charge anything"	"Catch nothing, and the $150 is all you pay."
"The setup fee is 100"	"$150."
"We just step on them"	"They're dispatched in the trap. Dead moles are double-bagged and put in your garbage can, so you never see them."
Guessing a mole fact (litter size, lifespan)	"Good question. I don't want to guess. Let me check with Spencer and get back to you."

5. Price by the PROPERTY size, not the lawn

JT Wilcox (1.5 acres), Julie Penrod (3 acres), Chad Kuipers (1.2 acres) and Lester Boerner (5 acres) were all quoted the under-1-acre price because the lawn was small.

The tier is the whole property:

- under 1 acre: $450 / $100
- 1–3 acres: $500 / $125
- 3–5 acres: $600 / $150
- over 5 acres or any commercial/HOA property: no phone price. Take their info and pass it to Cory for an in-person bid.

If they don't know the size, use the higher tier or look it up. Never pick the cheaper one and add a disclaimer.

6. If you promise a callback, make it, with a time

Kelsey Peck, Ken Lohse (twice), Gail McCurdy, Sam Pulu and Doreen Cich were all promised a callback that didn't happen.

- Give a real time: "I'll call you back by 3 today."
- Write it down, and call even if the answer is "I'm still waiting on Spencer."
- If a program customer reports any new activity, flag it to the team the same day. Any activity means a weekly visit.

- Check the calendar before naming a date. You told Ken the 19th was a Tuesday, but it's a Monday.

Out of area: don't say "we're working on covering that." Give the referral:

- Kitsap: Terry Cotton
- North of Seattle / Snohomish: Kirk at Northwest Mole King

Until Spencer confirms, don't promise these

Don't promise any of the following. Say "Let me confirm that with Spencer and call you back today."

- No deposit for returning customers
- 10% senior discount on the Quick Fix
- Cancellation notice periods or fees
- Waiving a Quick Fix balance when switching to the year-round plan
- Discounts that aren't on the price sheet

When you do give a discount, add it as a discount line item (see the Jobber training). Don't lower the unit price, and don't use the quote-level discount.

Keep doing this, it's working

- Sending quotes during or right after the call, with the right plan and deposit
- Checking the service-day sheet and using the day to close
- Reading the address and phone back
- Staying calm and kind with upset customers

Practice for 10 minutes a day:

1. Year-round plan first with "I'd put you on the year-round one" ×5
2. "I'll give you both prices in a minute" ×3
3. The spouse stall: get name and email ×3
